

WORDS FOR EXPRESSING EMOTION of TONE and MOOD IN LITERATURE

Use to be more specific when identifying ways authors express themselves on certain topics, and you, the reader responds to that writing.

calm
complacent
shocked
confused baffled explosive confident jealous
angry
boring
bored
cynical spiteful
caustic concerned
compassionate bewildered condescending curious strong obsessive
shrewd critical disbelief
fearful timid meek impotent
envious
cautious
pathetic
pitiful peaceful sarcastic
mocking derisive
ironic irrational
happy
playful flirtatious
coy seductive sexy inviting elated
euphoric
zealous determined precocious pedantic
impatient malicious
friendly frivolous

passive vicious inventive surreptitious impious
irreverent
superior
satiric
ecstatic
outraged outrageous obnoxious
laconic
lethargic
sardonic
exuberant
sad melancholy vengeful belligerent innocent aggressive
benevolent
giddy disheartened
audacious presumptuous passionate impassioned contented
serene humble paranoid nervous
evil
malicious
domineering
stern
solemn Biblical
religious reverent
sultry
alarmed
disturbed bitter
cheerful childish immature
callow
convincing hypnotic
chaotic frightened rude

wrathful agreeable amiable patronizing
humorous authoritative
bleak threatening embarrassed chauvinistic
sexist irritated vexed overwhelmed remote lonely hypocritical petulant petulant
discouraged loving affectionate
wroth
weary mystical persuasive
gentle
charity
regretful bittersweet
yearning
longing
hurt
wounded
savage vulgar
morbid violent soothing sensational inflammatory
heroic
elegiac romantic formal informal lofty majestic
furious

Adapted by

Anna J. Small Roseboro

<http://teachingenglishlanguagearts.com/>